

DELIVERING BETTER.

In the 25-seater FUSO Rosa, MoaTrek found the right fit for its four-star bespoke tours for senior travellers. Joint director Miles Clark says the combination of comfort, reliability and performance is the reason there are now five in the fleet.

“We bought our first three Rosas in 2014, after carefully comparing a number of different options. The FUSO Rosa was the best choice for the price, and fitted our need for a small but spacious bus with a seating capacity for 18 people,” says Miles.

The 7.7m-long Rosa has ample room to accommodate MoaTrek’s intimate tour groups. With the back seats removed, there is also space for an additional luggage compartment.

“Atmosphere inside the bus is very important on our tours; we want our customers to feel as though they are part of a family. The Rosa is big enough inside to feel spacious, but small enough to allow passengers to chat to the driver,” says general manager Steve Taylor.

“The automatic transmission and small 14.4m turning circle make it really easy to manoeuvre – it feels like driving a car,” says driver Marilyn Somerville, who has had over 15 years’ experience in the industry. “I’ve driven a lot of different buses in my time, but the FUSO Rosa is definitely the best to drive by far.”
